

Hi Kevin

After having failed the TRA, Pathway C, on the 25th March 2009, we thought our 'dream' move to Australia was over. After a couple of days later, and lots of researching on Pathway E we decided to pick ourselves up and give it another go.

Realising that we needed to get Mark's 15 years experience verified and gain an AQF III, we searched the net. We found ETA and sent them an e-mail/query regarding our situation. Within a couple of hours we received a reply from Peter Hodge explaining what the whole process entailed. After much deliberation we decided to sign up.

Mark had to have his 15 years work experience (Metal Fabricator/Boilermaker) assessed and we received a list of Objectives that ETA expected from us in order to gain a successful outcome. Once all the evidence had been collated, he then needed to be assessed in person. Darren Grant (Assessor) then arrived on 28th May 2009 at our home in Scotland to go over all written evidence and to formally assess Mark. Darren was honest, friendly and helped us in every way to compile all the evidence we needed. He also put our minds at ease and we knew from then on that we had made the correct decision in signing up with ETA. At the end of June, Mark had successfully gained his AQF III and this was submitted along with all relevant forms to the TRA.

On August 20th we received the great news that we had passed the TRA and were now able to apply for our 176 (subclass) visa for Australia!!! Our whole experience with ETA from start to finish has been fantastic, they not only helped us pass the TRA successfully, but have informed us of upcoming Australian Expo's and keep us updated on the Australian economy. We also met some of the staff at a stand they had at a recent Expo in Aberdeen and it was really nice to meet them face to face and thank them in person. We've found with ETA, there's always been someone at the other end to answer any queries throughout the whole process and have helped in anyway possible.

They've made the daunting task of gaining an AQF very easy and we would highly recommend the company to anyone that may find themselves in the same situation as us, as they are professional, very thorough and most importantly you achieve the results you are striving for.

Keep up the good work guys as you're doing an excellent job." Mark & Lynette Milne (NE Scotland)
